

Unraveling the Forces Behind the Plandemic: A Special Interview With Mikki Willis

By Dr. Joseph Mercola

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Welcome everyone. This is Dr. Mercola, helping you take control of your health. And today we are joined by Mikki Willis, who you might recall from last year, is responsible for producing the viral video, “Plandemic” and he's written a new book of the same name. Interestingly, his background is pretty much that of a progressive liberal and skeptic. And he came into this, he was a promoter, supporter of Bernie Sanders and did some work for him, and guess, became progressively disillusioned and then shifted things. But what I'm really particularly impressed with is his – and anyone really that comes into this, is if they're honest and open and objective and have integrity and seek to find the truth, it seems like it's inevitable that they're going to reach the same conclusion. So that's exactly what Mikki did. He's put together an astounding piece of work in this book that really capitalizes and summarizes much of the details of what it is and it's just a tremendous work. And we're going to talk to him today about that book. So welcome, and thank you for joining us.

Mikki Willis:

Thank you so much, Dr. Mercola. It's great to be here.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

So I think for those few who haven't seen your initial video that went just viral, I think it's a real, fascinating story. It was really the catalyst for so many others that followed. So maybe just talk about that story and then we can progress into the book.

Mikki Willis:

Well, I had met Judy Mikovits, who is the featured virologist in “Plandemic 1.” I'd met her about a year and a half before the pandemic was announced. And at the time, when it was announced, I was working on a film called “The Narrative,” which was to really pull back the curtain on mainstream media and the way that it's been infiltrated and has affected the global consciousness. And in the process of doing this, the whistleblowers that I was interviewing for the movie, several of them had warned me and said that there's a false flag coming very soon. And for those of you don't know what a false flag is, it means an event that takes place, that diverts the world's attention and, or subverts the consciousness such that we'll vote for war, or some kind of action overseas, or something like that.

Mikki Willis:

So it's some kind of an event that will cause some kind of a reaction. And so they said, "Yeah, this is coming. We're pretty sure about it because everything that we've been looking into..." And these are people from top agencies that really know what they're talking about, all whistleblowers, and most of them remain anonymous. And so I was on the lookout for this. And then suddenly when the pandemic was announced, I reached out to Judy Mikovits because we had met, as I said, a year and a half before. And I asked her, I said, "What do you think is going on here?" And I went and met with her in person and she started to break it down for me. And it seemed so viable that I said, "Let's stop what we're doing and go to my studio, sit down and do this on camera because I think that the world deserves to hear this information."

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah. So that was just the catalyst for it, but I'm particularly curious to hear really the details of how it exploded and went viral, and then how it was censored, which is an amazing story.

Mikki Willis:

Well, we released the first "Plandemic" on May the fourth. And it was kind of a little joke within our office because we pushed the button and said, "May the fourth be with us." And we knew that it would go viral. We've made a lot of videos, through the years, and we know how to hit the mark in terms of timing. We always ask ourselves, "What does the population, what do they want to hear and say right now?" And that's become a formula for us to really keep a track of the pulse to the people to find out where they are. And this of course was on everyone's mind. So we knew that it would get some traction out there, but of course you can never predict that a video would be seen over a billion times, I think it was the first one, definitely the first of a documentary nature to achieve that.

Mikki Willis:

And so we just posted the video on my Facebook page and really didn't have much of a network at the time but the real secret to the virality, there were two different, I would say spices in that formula that made it possible. And that is, the mainstream media's censorship made everyone want to see it even more. It's unbelievable to me that they haven't learned their lesson yet that, we learn this as parents and as children that when we're told not to cross the street, we know eventually we have to cross that street. And the more that the media told everyone to look away and there's nothing there to see, it really made people curious and really want to see it even more.

Mikki Willis:

But the technical strategy that we used to allow the film to not just be shut down immediately was because I have a background in digital distribution. I knew that if we were to host the video on any one particular site, that site would be zapped and the video would be gone instantly. And so you have to think opposite of where we are right now. And that is, where everyone's looking to collect clicks or traffic so they could turn on commercials and earn money from that. We had to look at it from a different perspective and say, "This is a gift for the people, and so we want you to have the file, download it yourself, upload it yourself, it's your movie, there's no restrictions." We did not cease and desist anyone at all from the use of our movie, even if they wanted to profit on it themselves, that was up to them.

Mikki Willis:

And so everyone downloaded the link and then uploaded it to their social networks. And in doing so, the censors, the gatekeepers had a really hard time. It wasn't just one or three or four centralized locations, it was millions of people all over the world sharing it. And so that's really allowed it to go as far as it did.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

And how many total views do you make of that?

Mikki Willis:

Well, the first “Plandemic” was well over 1 billion and-

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

1 billion, wow.

Mikki Willis:

1 billion. Yeah.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

That is amazing.

Mikki Willis:

Yeah. Translated into probably 20 languages at this point. And then the second one has received somewhere over 200 million, which is really great for a film of that size. It's 70-some minutes. And also considering the fact that, by that point all the Big Tech had censored the word “Plandemic.” And so, it made its reach much more difficult. So we're working on strategies now to overcome that aspect of censorship.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

And the second film was the one that primarily featured David Martin?

Mikki Willis:

That's right. We call that one “Plandemic: Indoctrination” featuring the brilliant David Martin who has been tracking white-collar crime for a number of years, a couple of few decades at this point, and has invented some of the technologies that allow for really tracing the paper trails of patterns and how money is moved around and all of that. So we decided in “Plandemic 2” to really follow the paper trail. And I will say that I'm very glad that we made that decision because it has been bulletproof and every single claim that David Martin made in the film has been 100% validated at this point, and it's really helped. He's the one that actually helped to educate Rand Paul and Ron Johnson when they started to go after Fauci to finally hold him accountable for his decades of crimes.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah. He's certainly compiled a lot of useful information on that area and really providing a motivation, a justification as to why this whole process was started. There are others who have looked into the actual science of the virus being of lab origin versus from nature that I think have done really good work also in proving, pretty definitively, that it's a lab-made virus, so – but with the two of these forces together, it would seem any logical, rational individual has no other conclusion but to determine that this was a lab-made virus and the reasons for it are the ones that

Dr. Martin's uncovered. So maybe you could summarize some of his finding because he really is a brilliant researcher and certainly dedicated and committed to the truth.

Mikki Willis:

Well, I will say this, I interviewed about 36 top doctors including Nobel laureates and top immunologists around the world and infectious disease experts. And those that I asked the question regarding the origins of the virus, they, 100% of them, said with absolute certainty, maybe two of them said, it's very doubtful, but the rest of them said with 100% certainty, there is no way if you look at the particular makeup of this virus, that it was something that was created from nature, that it had to be manipulated at the hands of the man to some degree. All of them agreed with that, that it would take many years to achieve what the mainstream was trying to suggest how it originated. And so, with David's findings, what he had shown in "Plandemic: Indoctrination" was that there was some concerted effort to hide the fact that they were conducting gain-of-function research.

Mikki Willis:

He had the paper trail of how much money had been spent, that had been moved through company called EcoHealth Alliance and where it ended up in Wuhan, at the lab. But as important as that is to know where the origin of the virus originated, it goes so far beyond that in the next – we are, I will announce right now, producing "Plandemic 3." And that one's going to go even further into really the origin of who's behind this and why, because, as I've noticed, as people have started to wake up to realize that something's going on here, the one question that they always ask me is, "But who's behind this?" And some of the people that you mention, they're worth hundreds of billions. "Is this really about money?" And the answer is, for the most part, no. Excuse me. The people at the top of the pyramid, they can just print their own money.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Mm-hmm (affirmative).

Mikki Willis:

It's really about ultimately creating a state of dependency through which you can then control the human population, and we're going to go deeper and really show the trail on how that works, the history of that, and how it's led us to this moment right now, and through psychological diversion has literally brainwashed a great deal of our population into fighting for these very wicked forces unknowingly, unwittingly.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah. Is it your best guess that it's the majority of the population who's been brainwashed with the propaganda? Or what percentage?

Mikki Willis:

No, but it appears that way. The people who are awake and aware at the very least that something is going on, we are the majority, [crosstalk 00:11:18] because the media has – there's one particular side of the media owns 95% of everything from print, radio, television, then it just gives this illusion that everyone thinks this way. And because they've done such a great job in infiltrating so many major organizations and corporations. We see the ads on TV, but it's only really representing one side of this situation. And so, the appearance is that everybody has been brainwashed into this, but I think we're perhaps at one point, maybe close to 50/50, but the past couple of years have really, every single day, tens of thousands of people wake up because they see the absurdities and they're grounded enough to look at these things and just say, "This doesn't make sense. Are we really going to eliminate the word mother and start calling 'birthing person' to our mother? Is this something that we were going to agree on?"

Mikki Willis:

Even people who are a complete support of LGBTQ+ communities, they're looking at that saying, "I don't know that that's healthy, and that we want to do that because we love our mothers, we respect our mothers, and we're starting to see that there was maybe another agenda here to get us to lose everything and disconnect with everything that is most valuable to us, to hate men, because men are the ones that go to the frontline, for the most part, and fight for the country, to really chop off the pillars of everything that's important to us, so that we're ultimately weakened and have nothing to fight for." And people are waking up to realize that that's probably part of this grand agenda.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Interesting. So what is the schedule for "Plandemic 3," the release of it? Is it going to be similar to "Plandemic: Indoctrination?"

Mikki Willis:

It will be similar in its length and its brevity. We have just started this project last week. And so we're looking at about two months of production, and then probably two months of post-production, which is very, very fast for a documentary but we created "Indoctrination" in just a little over three months, and I don't know that that's ever been done before, but really hats off to my incredible team. And some of my team members I've been working with for 10, 15 years and so we really know how to work with each other, and stay out of each other's way, and be there when it's necessary, and to allow things to get done on the fast track. And so we have it on the fast track, but again, there's a lot of research that has to be done. Anything that I release at this point is under the microscope of the global media. And so it has to go through all kinds of channels of verification before we'll even dare put it into our movie and release it to the public.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah. You want to discuss that because you review that in the book? The steps you took to protect yourself and the results of what happened after that, such an interesting story. So it sounds like the "Plandemic 3" will be out before the holidays?

Mikki Willis:

Yes, that's the goal.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Okay, good. So why don't you discuss, because you learned a lesson with the original "Plandemic," and "Plandemic 2" or "Indoctrination?" You attempted to counter some of the rebuttals that were being thrown at you and discrediting the campaign. So maybe if you could summarize your strategy and then the responses to that afterward, and how they still use it to discredit you.

Mikki Willis:

Well, it's interesting, we're going to take that further in "Plandemic 3" because it's actually it's a fun challenge for our team here to create something in real time. "Plandemic 2," we were able to observe the reaction to "Plandemic 1" and then respond to it. And so we were able to show that a lot of the critiques, perhaps all of them, including the fact-checkers, we were able to show what they said about the film and then what the facts are, and actually show it on screen because we know that most people don't have the time to actually do the research. So we showed the patterns. They would say, "Oh, this didn't exist. This didn't happen. Money wasn't moved here. These people are liars. They're all conspiracy theorists." And then we would show the paper trail on the screen and say, "This is the pattern. This is where it went. Here it is."

Mikki Willis:

And then after the movie was released, we actually went out, David Martin mostly, was the one that went straight to these critics and said, "I've read your review, and would you like to debate this?" And then while I was online hosting a $10,000 challenge to anyone that could prove one claim from the movie inaccurate. And I had my money in electronic escrow account and said, "That's all you have to do, one major claim in the movie, prove it wrong and you win my money." And people tried, but they would give us these phony fact-checker reports and we would debunk them. And so, they just went away after about six months of me offering that challenge. I really wanted to show people that there's a whole other world behind the smokescreen of propaganda that is used to get people to ignore important information.

Mikki Willis:

And so with "Plandemic 3," we're going to go further now. Once again, in real time, we're going to say, "Here's what we said, here's what they said about us, now here's what they're finally saying one year later." Literally every claim that they called Judy Mikovits crazy about, that they said I was a propagandist and a fame-seeking, whatever they used to smear me, and Judy, and David. We're able to now say, "Now they're allowing it to be said in the press, the very companies, Big Tech and Big Media that said, 'We can't say this because it's disinformation and it's harmful and it's going to hurt people.' Now, they've released their ban on that and now they're saying it, now they're allowing it."

Mikki Willis:

And you even have these crooked media companies acting like they believe that all along, "Oh yes. Oh, we've never denied the fact that this may have been manmade." Yes you did. You totally did, enough that you actually destroyed this distribution of my film and a lot of people's lives over mentioning that claim. And now they're trying to get ahead of the liability.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah. That's been an interesting transition in the last few weeks or months that they've actually accepted that as true or not denied it anymore. What impact do you think that's had on the transition from the people who had swallowed the propaganda and were fairly significantly brainwashed to moving them more into the direction of understanding that there's a massive cover-up going on here and something that's far deeper than apparent a sensible way from what they're saying?

Mikki Willis:

Well, that's what I mentioned earlier when I said every day, every week, tens of thousands of people are waking up and thanks to the media for their continued buffoonery with these points that they're making that they just jump out, react, say something, and then next week or next day is proven inaccurate. Every time they do that, they're getting less viewers to which is why their viewership has just plummeted over the past four years. And so I'm grateful that they keep making those extreme mistakes like that because it really is creating a grand awakening. And I know that from being in the center of the storm. I get messages every day on my cell phone of people that were attacking me just six months ago, that will, in their own way – I think the ego is so strong that people don't want to say, "Hey, I'm sorry."

Mikki Willis:

I have a few people who have said that, but the most of them will try their underhanded apology just by sending me a link and saying, "Hey man, isn't this what your movie said?" And I say, "Yeah, it really is. What do you think about that?", "Wow, it's interesting, man. So I guess you got that one right." "Yeah. Well, we actually got a lot right, and I'm glad to see that you're waking up to that." So they'll send me these messages every day and that's an indicator for me too, that they're really waking up.

Mikki Willis:

And as you mentioned at the top of this interview, that I came from the pretty extreme, progressive politics. And I know that there's a lot of people that I know very well, a lot of commentators and journalists, and I would say really hardcore, progressive activists out there, that I'm observing that their narrative is changing dramatically and they're starting to wake up to what felt like an outlandish conspiracy theories, that there truly is a culture of people, whatever you want to call it, the globalist or whatever, it might be the elite, there's different names, that are knowingly, not just out of incompetence.

Mikki Willis:

That's the stage when people start to realize that something's not right though, the first thing they go, "Okay, Anthony Fauci you must just be incompetent. We need to fire him and get rid of him. He's incompetent." Now it goes much further than that. It's not incompetence, they're doing exactly what they planned on doing, and they're just being found out. If you notice, it's always these Bill Gates and Anthony Fauci characters they put up front that, I'll even say as the filmmaker, I have a hard time, because I want to believe the best in people. Really, I was raised that way and I know that we're all born good and a lot of people that go bad, typically something happened along the way and someone got under their heads, or an event took place that had them disconnect from their nature.

Mikki Willis:

So I always want to believe the best in people. And so it took me a long time before I would be willing to say anything out loud about Bill Gates or Anthony Fauci, because I thought if I'm wrong and these men are really trying to help the world, if that's the case, even if they're doing it in a horrible way, I don't think that I have the power to actually slander somebody in that way. And I don't want to be person to do that. If they're really trying their hardest, I hope somebody educates them so they can do a better job.

Mikki Willis:

But as I delved into this with a really incredible team of researchers and started to really learn the history of Bill Gates and Anthony Fauci, and many, many others, they're just the people at the forefront of this, the faces of it, I realized that there has to be, at this point, a real knowing of what they're doing and a plan behind what they're doing. And as soon as I started looking there, that's when I saw every bit of indication, every bit of evidence pointed in one direction, and that is, they're fully aware of what they're doing. And that's the sad part of this.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yes, they are. And indeed they've compiled quite a bit of power in this. And I'm wondering what your views are since you've been full-time in covering all these details for the last almost two years now, what your projection is for the future. It seems like this is a David versus Goliath scenario, certainly in the level of power that they have especially when you look at some of the global monopolies, like Google that control literally 93% of the searches in the world.

Mikki Willis:

Yeah.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

And most people get their information from the internet and they believe the results of their search. So when you have that power and control, it makes it a bit difficult. So I'm glad your sense is that we have the majority of the people are beginning understand this scenario, but still, it's a fairly significant challenge. And I'm wondering what your view is as to what you see how this [is] playing out. Will there be some necessary technological innovation, like a decentralized internet where you can't have these few number of organizations really control the information flow? Or is it – what do you think this scenario is in the next year or two? Or what's the end game to, I guess, stop this and develop a resistance to what their plan is?

Mikki Willis:

Well, my prediction comes from understanding the history of human mythology, really. So it's not a guess, but it's understanding. As a filmmaker, I've had to study the work of Joseph Campbell, and really the history of the stories that we've been telling ourselves since the cradle of civilization and beyond, really the stories that are etched on the cave walls to the campfires. And when you understand that there's a primal narrative that emerges whenever we try to figure out our existence, and we can understand what stage, what act we're in right now in this modern age and that is, all the movies, if you really think about the formula that goes into a screenplay of any modern movie and any classic, iconic movie as well, there's the reluctant hero that is faced with a life or death challenge and they go in search of someone, a savior, someone to save themselves, or save humanity, or whatever it might be to learn that they are the one, that the force is with them and that they have to rise up, and that it was actually them, as the Hopi say, "We are the ones we've been waiting for."

Mikki Willis:

And so we're in that point right now. My prediction is that we haven't quite reached the fiery crescendo yet that all movies feature to some degree in their third act. And so my prediction is it will get worse before it gets better. We're going to have a succession of attacks of everything, from cyber-attacks, to food chain attacks, to everything to do with our power and perhaps even some form of war that we'll be engaged in. But the end of that story, is that we win. I have no doubt about that. And everyone that I know that really studies this deeply has the same conclusion. Is that, we, in the end, this is the human story. We are the David against the Goliath, and the Goliath is incredibly powerful but will be defeated.

Mikki Willis:

And so it requires us to do the one thing that we're all afraid to do right now. And that is to stand up and to speak out. And the way that they have scared Americans, most powerful nation on the planet with very advanced thinkers on the planet, but they have frightened us. And one of the ways that they do this, is they determine and they create a narrative that anything that looks this way, anything that looks patriotic, anything that looks like people in the street fighting for freedom, that's a right-wing thing, that's a Donald Trump thing, that's a White supremacy thing. And so nobody wants to be associated with White supremacy or anything like that. So they just stay out on the streets. And so we have to overcome that.

Mikki Willis:

Then you have the people that are just – they just don't want to be canceled, they don't want to lose their job. But if they knew how serious, if they really could wake up to the depth of the seriousness of what we're going through right now, they would realize that if they don't stand up, they're going to lose their job in a much more tragic situation. And so it's a lot-

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Well, they'll lose a lot more than their job. That's for sure.

Mikki Willis:

Yeah. That's what I mean.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah-

Mikki Willis:

And so it's really become incredibly urgent right now that we get past that. When you look at our social media and you see that literally, they've created little buttons of likes, and all these people, they got us – all this is psychological subversion, right? That they've gotten us so addicted to behave in a way that will generate likes, that we don't want to step out to do anything that will cause us to be disliked. And so we have to get over that, we have to be willing to be uncomfortable, we have to be willing to let our friends go. If we lose friends over us simply speaking our truth, whether it's 100% accurate or not, then they're not our friends in the first place. So we have to get over that, rise up, speak out, deal with the attacks that come. Because I will say, to people as somebody who has received a lot of attacks and still gets – last week, Vice just wrote another hit piece on me. So New York Times, Vice, Rolling Stone, major publications writing hit pieces on me, trying to get my book taken down already, and it hasn't even been out yet, you're the only person, besides myself and my publishers, who has read the book yet somehow Vice and these other organizations, they are telling everyone how horrible the book is. And it's not even out. There's no way they could have read it by now.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

I did not send it to Vice.

Mikki Willis:

I'm sure you didn't. But the point is they don't want that information out there. And so I say, thank you Vice, thank you Media Matters and George Soros and the people who are out there actively trying to get people to protest Amazon, which I wish we didn't have to sell the book on Amazon, but to reach the people in this particular age right now, until what you had mentioned is definitely is being created, which are a lot of decentralized technologies that will allow us to have the power of technology in our hands as the people. Until that stuff is ready, we're still at the mercy and dependent upon Amazon and other organizations like that. And that is part of the plan, and that's part of-

Mikki Willis:

Even COVID's plan was to kill all the mom-and-pop shops, all the personal businesses, so that we're all dependent upon these multinational corporations that are under the control of the same people that are behind all of this, so that they can then make sure that all of our supplies, everything we need to get by in our lives, are controlled by people that are controlled by them so that they can then control our lives. And that's really what this game is about.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

All right. So let's get back to your book, the one that Vice discredited without, I mean, haven't obviously read it. And it highlights some of the things that reinforces what you just said. And one of them is the discrediting and the ostracism of people for seeking to agree with the truth. And I think the most egregious example in the book is Fauci. Interestingly, he's the topic of another book written by Bobby Kennedy Jr., that probably will be out in the fall, is "The Real Anthony Fauci."

Mikki Willis:

Yeah.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Unbelievable compilation of information. And you went and did a deep dive also, but ultimately Fauci was responsible. He's been in office or in his position for five decades. I mean he holds the record, he beats J. Edgar Hoover. And during those five decades, he is collectively responsible for distributing, and I didn't know this, a trillion dollars of funding through the NIH (National Institutes of Health) or NIAID (National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases). So a trillion dollars, and he has total control over that. And it goes to these investigators, almost all Pharma and you dive – what I really appreciate about your book is you go into the history of medicine that – you're not the first one to do it, but you put it together very cleverly, how basically it all started a century or a little bit more, maybe 120 years when Rockefeller and Carnegie got together and put together reflection report and is said that it started the beginning of the end of American medicine and shift them over to the pharma model.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

And I actually haven't read the second part of Bobby's book, which goes into that. So I don't know what it is, but the first half was brilliant. But clearly, in the last 50 years, it's been Fauci that's been leading the charge on destroying American medicine. And the point I wanted to bring up and I want you to respond to is how anyone who went against what he said was demolished, literally destroyed. They could have been the most credible, professional, well-respected expert in their field, the entire world and there's many examples of this, they had integrity, they had the truth, they went against them and they got destroyed. And that is almost like what they're doing in North Korea. Anyone who disagrees, they do public execution. So that provides a scenario where you really feel threatened for your own life to go out there. So if you can expand on that and bring out some of the great points you made in your book, that would be great.

Mikki Willis:

Absolutely. Well, as a younger man in my 20s, I watched my brother suffer from AIDS (acquired immunodeficiency syndrome) for a number of years, until suddenly a miracle drug hit the market.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

No.

Mikki Willis:

And my brother's gay community warned him and my mother, they said, "Be very careful. This drug, we think it's hurting people and not helping them." And yet, when they would turn on the TV and see Fauci embraced by Elton John and Liza Minnelli and all these incredible superstars of that era, well, my mom and my brother would say, "Well, obviously this man knows more than my brother's friends. We have to listen to this prominent doctor who has won the support and love of the most influential people on the planet. He must be telling us the right information."

Mikki Willis:

And so they decided to put my brother on a medicine that is called AZT that later was proven to do the exact opposite of what it was supposed to do. And that is, it destroyed the T-cells and killed people. And all the while there were medicines, just like today, same game book, medicines that were out of patent, that were very inexpensive, that could have saved my brother and millions of other people, but those were kept from the people. And so that the distribution of AZT, which Anthony Fauci went out and recommended strongly for pregnant women and it destroyed-

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Children.

Mikki Willis:

And children, and destroyed lives. And so I saw this happen. And then when my brother finally succumbed to AZT and died, my mother, who was a cancer survivor, was so guilt-ridden because she was one of the ones saying, "No, sweetheart, we have to stay on this. The doctors say 'Your personal doctor and this Anthony Fauci, who is one of the top doctors in the world, they say, it's – I know it's making you sick and I know it feels like it's making things worse, but as they all say, you're going to get better, if you get off of this, you're going to die.'" Well, the medicine killed him. And my mom, as a cancer survivor, was so overcome with the guilt of that, that she died 36 days later. And so that was the wake-up call for me to watch, and ultimately what my mom died of was bad cancer treatments.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Mm-hmm (affirmative). Yeah sure. It's another strategy they use.

Mikki Willis:

The whole other thing. And so, seeing this as a young man, had me become very skeptical of that area of Western medicine. I want to say that I'm a lover and a supporter of medicine, and of doctors and the promise of medicine, but I understand that when the medicine is being regulated through such corrupt industries, that we have a serious problem. And so I saw that at a very young age and it stayed with me forever. But at that time, I was really devastated by the loss of my brother and my mother all within a month. And so I just wanted to forget about it. We didn't have the internet the way we do now. And so, I just went on with my career and just put it all behind me. And then lo and behold, when I met Judy Mikovits, our first meeting, she was actually letting me know that she was writing a book and that might be something that I want to make as a movie.

Mikki Willis:

And as she started to explain to me and pitched to me what her book was going to be, she mentioned Anthony Fauci. And I thought, "I know that name." And it gave me a really strange feeling. I was like, "I remember my brother's friends saying this little Napoleon, guy with a Napoleon complex." I remember hearing overhearing one of my brother's friends refer to Anthony Fauci as a little man with a Napoleon complex. I went, "Is that little Napoleon guy from the '80s? Let me look at this." I looked into it and I went, "Oh, it's the same guy that was overseeing the – how is he still in business? Because he killed hundreds of thousands of people in Africa and all over the world and he still, at somehow the helm of American medicine, this is just bizarre to me." And that's when I started to look deeper into the situation. And it wasn't that big of a leap for me to consider that something nefarious was taking place because I already knew the history of Anthony Fauci.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah. And I think it's so critical and important to understand this because it provides you with the basic framework of the foundation, understanding if it could happen with the AIDS epidemic, this is just a simple repeat play that they're instigating. And you're right, Bobby, in his book, had the data and the facts that was a third of a billion people that died from AZT, a third of a billion.

Mikki Willis:

That's exactly right.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah. And it killed more people than HIV did, because if you used these common, inexpensive drugs, it's exactly what the strategy that we're trying to do here, with ivermectin, hydroxychloroquine, and zinc, and vitamin D, quercetin, that were totally banned and suppressed, which they interestingly didn't have the capacity to do as easily in the '80s but they just cleverly ramped that intervention dramatically, so-

Mikki Willis:

Yeah.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

But then the other thing with that too, is that – you have a tremendous example. One of the people I was thinking of when I mentioned a discredited scientist, was Peter Duesberg, was the most prominent virologist in the world in the '80s. Number one, he became an AIDS denier [and] said, "HIV does not cause AIDS, it is not the cause of AIDS." Totally contradicted Fauci. So when they would try to go on a national TV and debate on platform, every time Fauci had enough influence [crosstalk 00:37:08] and he totally disagreed with his position of AZT. And-

Mikki Willis:

Well, then we have Kary Mullis.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Well, Kary Mullis invented the PCR (polymerase chain reaction). Yeah, there is a whole other story but-

Mikki Willis:

And he also had the same conclusion regarding AIDS when he started to look into. He came to the same conclusion.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

He did, but he didn't get to discredit it as Duesberg did. I mean Duesberg was just an absolute – everyone thought he was nuts. And he happened to be the brightest virologist in the entire world. And what the interesting part of the story is that later on, after he'd been totally discredited and squashed, Fauci's team came up with a proposal to him. They wrote a paper and put Duesberg as one of the lead authors and said, "Listen, you sign out of this paper and then agree that you were wrong and everything will be turned around, and you get everything back." And you know what Duesberg said, "No way."

Mikki Willis:

Mm-hmm (affirmative).

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

He had integrity. There's so few people like that. So if-

Mikki Willis:

Well, that's really what Judy Mikovits did.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah, absolutely. And we've got a few others that are standing up, like Robert Mueller, the guy who invented the mRNA technology, goes out on some videos and interviews, says what he says, and they take him... they re-write about-

Mikki Willis:

Robert Malone. Yeah.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah. Robert Malone. Sorry about that. But they take him out of the history books. They rewrite him out. He didn't invent it anymore.

Mikki Willis:

Yeah. I know. And other people are trying to claim the Nobel prize for it. And yeah, it's really crazy. I mentioned the Kary Mullis thing because I think it's very important for people who don't understand this. So as you said, Dr. Mercola, Kary Mullis is the man who invented the PCR test, won the Nobel prize in biochemistry for the PCR test, went out very publicly many, many times to say his invention should never be used to detect the virus, that it was never meant for that. And the reason is, is that it's easily manipulated, that it's based upon cycles, and if you go over too many cycles, you can find any virus in any body. And so it was too easy to manipulate it. And oddly enough, he died seven months before the pandemic was announced.

Mikki Willis:

And then another man came out, the man who actually created the organization called Rethink HIV. And he came out in defense of the late Kary Mullis to say that he's very concerned that his invention is being used the way it is because Kary said it should never be used to detect virus because you can cheat the case count too easily. And then that man died right after he made those public announcements. So there's a lot to be investigated there. Now, is that all coincidence? Perhaps it is, just untimely deaths that happened. But it's interesting to think that they would use this man's test, the man who won the Nobel Prize for it, that they would have used it for. If he were alive – if anyone knew Kary Mullis, he was very vocal, did not pull back at all when he spoke about Anthony Fauci, called him a moron, said, "I'll say that to his face. He knows nothing about medicine and he is a bureaucrat, 100%. What is he doing in that position-

Mikki Willis:

And so he would have been out front. So it's interesting that the choice to use the PCR test to manipulate the numbers and the man who invented it, who was against it being used that way, died right before the pandemic was announced. These things we have to look into, at least have an investigation, just to see if there's anything fishy that took place there.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Well, the problem with these investigations is the reach of the powers that be and their influence over really suppressing all this types of investigations. I mean, they are in control. They really have the ultimate power and authority to suppress any sincere and authentic investigation and evaluation. So I doubt much would come of that. I really do. And you could see a similar analogy in these dead doctors don't lie, where clearly physicians were killed, it was pure homicide, and they were initially attributed to a suicide. So, I mean, it's a common pattern, so-

Mikki Willis:

Yeah, we'll have some form of changing of the guards, I think, of the next few years and at least to the extent that I think some of these investigations will be allowed. And there's a few things that will be coming out this year that I think will become bombshells. And if the media doesn't succeed in hiding them, I think it will influence the future of investigations.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

This is something that's going to be revealed in "Plandemic 3?"

Mikki Willis:

Yes.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Okay, great. I look forward to that one.

Mikki Willis:

Yeah.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Oh boy. So we didn't really address some of the highlights that David Martin came together because he's really brilliant researcher and thinker and very eloquent in being able to concisely summarize the evidence that is so profoundly supportive of the motivation behind this entire scam. So maybe you can summarize the highlights of that because you go in great detail in the book. It's fantastic.

Mikki Willis:

Well, yeah. I don't know if anyone can articulate it quite like David does. Yeah. He remembers – it's incredible to me. David and I have become really great friends and he's a very intimate part of “Plandemic 3,” and it just blows my mind that he knows just about every patent number by heart and he's just a computer in that way. But there's so much that we're going to reveal in the next one. We're going to answer the question together of really, “What is the big picture behind this?” And then we're going to also expose some of David's newest work, which is how to rebuild. How do we really rebuild? For me, that's the most important thing that we can get into right now, where we're creating new curriculums for schools, where we want to make sure that parents understand what's being injected into the curriculums of schools around the world.

Mikki Willis:

They're now attacking our youngest because when you do that. For decades that they've gone after people at the collegiate level, but now they're going after K through 12. And when you get into the heads of little people and you convince them that all of America's racist, that white people are bad, that everyone is oppressed just by their skin color, that police are bad, and ultimately hate themselves to just feel guilt and shame if they have pigmentation similar to ours. And so ultimately what that does is it leaves people in this place of being easily controlled and subverted to what ultimately will look a lot like communism. And I know that when people say that word, we've all been wired to just think that that's, it's like saying the earth is flat, right?

Mikki Willis:

There's a just an involuntary reaction that takes place. But call it whatever you want to call it. If you understand the history of the way that these other territories, these other nations have been overcome and infiltrated by communist ideologies, you then take a look at what's happening here in America and you realize, this is actually what's taking place here. Talk to people. I've spent the last two years interviewing people from Cuba, and Korea, and Poland, and Russia and all over the place, Venezuela, places that – because people care. The heart of humanity is good. And so when you approach them and you say, “We have this structure, this system called socialism, but it's different.” If you've heard anything bad about socialism, it's not that one. That's what got me to go on tour with Bernie Sanders because he threw the word democratic in front of it and I thought, “Oh, people-powered socialism where we take care of each other.”

Mikki Willis:

As somebody who was raised by a single mother on welfare, that struck me and I thought, “Yes, this is what we need. I don't want the government to handle our lives.” But if it's democratic and we can then say, no one should be at the bottom, let's help these people. And perhaps nobody should be at such a power of Jeff Bezos that they can really do what he's doing now, which is a monopoly. Bill Gates, his whole life has been about monopolizing the industries. And so should they be that powerful? Well, I believe in freedom, so I also don't want to limit somebody from becoming successful, but should we limit the possibility of monopolies such that it's not just one man that's controlling everything because if that one man goes crazy, then we're all screwed?

Mikki Willis:

Yes. Perhaps we should find some kind of regulations around that. So I got excited about this idea of democratic socialism. And it wasn't until I was on the road for a few months with the Bernie Sanders campaign that I started to interview all these people. And I edit most of what I shoot, I'm one of the editors at least. And so I'm always thinking like, "Did I get an answer to my question?" So that when I get back in the editing bay, I have a full piece of totality that I can create a story out of. And I was not getting that from my answers on the road with Bernie. People would ask him about, "Please explain democratic socialism and how it's different." And they would just skirt around it and give me all these other long explanations that I believe may go on.

Mikki Willis:

"I don't think I have what I need to edit this piece. What's going on here?" I never experienced that to such a degree before. And then I started to just get curious and talk to the younger people on a personal level, sometimes with the camera not even rolling and just find out like, "What headspace are you in and what attracts you to this campaign?" And then a lot of them started opening up to me because at that point I became very public in my support for Bernie. So they trusted me and I thought I was one of them and I was. And I started to say, "Well, ultimately democratic socialism will lead to a new form of communism." And I would say, "What do you mean? A new form? What does that look like?"

Mikki Willis:

And they couldn't explain why it was different. They said, "Well, it's communism and that there's no top down. It's just everyone's even, and there's equality," and it's just sounded beautiful. But I said, "But you do realize you're talking about communism and it's never worked any place. It's just leads to genocide and serious oppression of the people, and you're trying to solve oppression and corruption with a model that actually breeds that? I don't understand. Please help me understand this." And nobody could explain it, but they were 100% for it. And that scared me because I thought there's something going on here in this collective mindset that has people not even fully aware of what they're saying, such that they believe in something that they don't even know the history of it.

Mikki Willis:

And so that's when I started to really question my support and I stepped off the tour after Philadelphia. I said, "I can't be part of this anymore because I think that the idea of helping people, of helping all people, all colors, all social status, all classes," that appeals to me to this day, very much so and I would imagine to you and to everyone listening to this, we all want that. But the idea that we're going to do it through a structure similar to communism, I think is insane. And when you understand the amount of young people that have come out of college, actually thinking that it is benevolent, that's what it's going to take us at least 10 years to overcome that mindset. And it's almost good that we're going to go through more suffering, should I say, a worst time because unfortunately, people need to see that.

Mikki Willis:

You can't just tell them, "It would be bad, let's divert from this." They actually have to experience it. Like right now, people are experiencing – they thought Biden was going to come in and save the day, and now they're going, "What is going on here? The border is worse, kids are being treated worse, there's sex trafficking happening with young people. The economy's collapsing. We have new wars, on the verge of new wars. The promises that you made, what's going-" They needed to see it to actually get that Trump was used as a big boogeyman to get them to look away from what they're – it's just like magicians. The sleight of hand trick is, "Watch this. I'm doing a magic trick," while this hand is actually, whatever, stashed in the pocket or doing whatever it's doing.

Mikki Willis:

And so that's the game of politics. Is this, "Look over here, look how bad this guy is. Let's keep him in the press all day long. Look what he said right now." All this trivial stuff. And then over here, we're actually rearranging your lives, stripping away your civil liberties, changing the structures of your curriculums in your schools, and nobody sees it until it's finally too late, until the child comes home and says, "Mommy, I wish I weren't white, I wish I weren't a man because they're bad. And I want to be transgender, I want to be whatever, just because I don't like this body that I got planted into." And that's a really sad thing that's happening so much out there.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah, no question. It's my suspicion that the vast majority of the people in this country don't really understand how bad communism is, because there really just don't have a lot of exposure, very limited exposure to it. And I'm not sure if you're familiar with the North Korean activists of – a young woman, 28-year-old woman, Yeonmi Park.

Mikki Willis:

Mm-hmm (affirmative).

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Have you heard of her before?

Mikki Willis:

Yes.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Okay. Is she going to be Plandemic 3? She should be.

Mikki Willis:

It's funny that you mentioned that because my editor yesterday, he couldn't remember her name, but that's who he was talking about. Now I realize. He said, "We have to get her in the movie," so...

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

We have to get her. This woman is-

Mikki Willis:

Yeah.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

That's hard to think about our [inaudible 00:50:57] or stories, but once you understand the depths of oppression of communism, as she clearly illustrates, that's what we need. We need that type of inspiration. She's an amazing woman.

Mikki Willis:

Well, thank you for caring so much. I really appreciate you caring to that degree.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

How are you going to catalyze and get people to be interested if they don't know what the endgame is?

Mikki Willis:

Well, I'll tell you this, as a lot of people know, some of the viewers here might know, there's some controversy around my presence of being at the Capitol, January 6th, and the media had created a very serious campaign to smear me, to try to take down the "Plandemic" guy. They sent a – New York Times had a videographer stalking me, trying to capture things that they could use out of context. And they did a really good job featuring me in there, the Capitol video that they had too, and using a snippet of something that I said to make it appear that I was for the insurrection and the violence, and that I was part of the "hang Mike Pence" chat, all that was just absolute bull.

Mikki Willis:

I was there for one purpose. I didn't even go to rally, to march, or any of that. I was there to film people from communist nations. There were a lot of them. They were there to raise their voice at their nation's Capitol, to warn the world. And I filmed people from about eight different nations that had escaped communism. And every single one of them, it's actually become a problem in the editing bay, because when you edit something, you want a diversity of answers, but everybody's answer was the same. So I could just literally have each other – I could have them finish each other's sentences because all of them said – when we asked them, "Where are you from?" Because they'd have flags, clearly that they're – we would look at somebody and say, "Where are you from?", "I'm from North Korea. I'm from Cuba. I'm from Poland. I'm from-" Okay, great. Or China even.

Mikki Willis:

And we would say, "Why are you here?" And some of them would say, "Oh, because we think the election is unfair," or whatever. "Okay, cool. Why else are you here?", "I'm here because I'm an immigrant. My parents escaped here," or, "I escaped here. And we're here to tell America one thing, wake up."

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Mm-hmm (affirmative).

Mikki Willis:

What happened to us is happening to you and we never thought in a million years – we thought when we finally got here, as immigrants, that we would be safe in the land of the free and the home of the brave, and now we are witnessing everybody sleeping through exactly what we slept through, which allowed our entire nation to be overcome, and for us, as a people to be totally controlled by our government. You guys are giving so much power to your government. And the one thing I want to say about socialism, ultimately what it does is, it gives the government power. So now the government is giving you stipends, is giving everyone all these progressives, talk about UBI (universal basic income) and all these things, great, I want people to have health care. Yes. Great. I want people to have great education. If our tax money is going to go anywhere, paying for the next generation's education sounds like a great thing, but not through our corrupt government.

Mikki Willis:

That's the problem is, we have to create a true democratic way to allow these things to happen. Because if we think suddenly our government's going to use these funds in a benevolent way that's going to advance our future and make us all healthy, then we're totally insane by this point because the government has never done that, at least not in my lifetime.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Is it your perception that America is the last stand?

Mikki Willis:

America is the last stand, and Texas is a big part of it too, which is why I moved to Texas to be a functioning part of the incredible people that are here, who have been raised with constitutional understandings, that I knew nothing about, being a California boy. I was raised into a certain ideology and it had me see that anything that looked like that was kind of a brand of America that I wasn't interested in. I wanted something new, something progressive, not understanding that it's the history of the foundation of what built this country that makes it so amazing. So I had to go back and reeducate myself into really what the forefathers said. And there's some incredible insights, incredibly profound, prophetic words within our Constitution and beyond, that were set up to protect us against moments just like this.

Mikki Willis:

They knew this was coming. At a certain point, I was all for gun control. And now here I am in Texas, going to the gun range and appreciating the fact that it was set up to protect the people from a tyrannical government. And now I hope to never even ever have to use my – now that I have guns, I hope to never have to use them unless it's for sports of some kind. But the truth is, is we've reached a point and when I talk with the gun shops, and I've interviewed some of them for certain projects, they now tell me, they say, "Most of our clientele are people from the left, people who were just anti-gun a few months ago that are now stockpiling because they realize that things have gotten so bad that if there's a civil war or whatever, or if there's people come knocking on our door to inoculate our children with experimental toxins, it's like-"

Mikki Willis:

That's not what I'm about. I have to make that super clear. I'm not here to raise a stand against authority or anything like that. But there are people that are feeling that they would go to that extent should something like that take place. And so we start to understand the value of our Constitution and the foundational principles that built this nation. And those are the things that's being chipped away at. I was raised without religion and I actually will admit to you that I have lived most of my life with a lot of judgment about people who are religious, until this past year and a half. I have come to a great appreciation. I found a deeper understanding of my own fate and faith. And I have learned that the people that impressed me the most, that are humble, that are not doing this for any kind of profit, but that are simply here to stand for the organism of life, all have some form of a foundation of faith in God in their lives.

Mikki Willis:

They talk about being led by God, being of service to God. And it's really opened my eyes and most importantly my mind and heart to looking past the judgments that were instilled in me being a California boy, to appreciate better. Now, I'm taking my sons to church every now and then to say, "I want you to learn this. I want you to be around people that believe in something greater than themselves," whatever that is. And even, I have a lot of very intelligent atheist friends. And when I get into deep conversations with them now, I used to think, "Oh, they don't believe in God." Now I realize, "No, we all believe in some form of God," because when you really talk with a very intelligent atheist, they'll talk about nature and life, and just how incredible the system of biology is.

Mikki Willis:

And they speak about it with such reverence that as they're speaking, I think, "Well, that's God." You're talking about being mystified by some kind of, by the creation of mankind and the creation of all living things and you don't want to call it God, and I appreciate that, but we all need to wake up to realize that when we think that we are the dominant force, then we do things like Bill Gates does and like Anthony Fauci does. And at this point, after knowing what I know now, having done the depth of research that I've done and studied other people's research, really professional researchers, I now really deeply consider that there is some entity of darkness, of evil, that's behind this agenda because it's the only thing that explains to me how people could knowingly allow children to be raped and brutalized the way that they're, knowingly just for political power. I mean, if that's not evil, I don't know what is.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Well along the same lines, recommending vaccinations that are likely to kill, injure or harm them when there's not even remotely necessary, certainly goes into that component.

Mikki Willis:

And that blows my mind that people can look at the risks count and just say, "My child is not even in the category of being at risk at all." And as a parent, not understanding the development of the natural immune system is probably one of the most precious things that we can nurture in ourselves and in each other. And for them to make that choice, and pregnant women to make that choice and go, "There's no data out yet. We have no idea what the long-term effects are of this, but because the TV and these late-night hosts are saying that it's immoral not to do it, I'm going to go roll up my sleeve and risk this child that I'm carrying in my womb." It absolutely blows my mind that any mother would take that chance.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Well, it doesn't blow my mind because they're so effective at the propaganda. This is probably some of the most sophisticated propaganda in the history of mankind and the technology [inaudible 01:00:36] support that. So I'm not surprised, saying sadly disappointed is certainly an understatement. But one of the important components that – because you've obviously done a lot of deep thinking, as I'm curious to what your suspicion or belief – not beliefs, but how this might play out in the end run. And clearly there needs to be a leadership here and equally as clearly, that leadership can't have nothing to do with a political party. It is totally independent of that and political parties are behind us because whoever's president clearly has no influence over rescuing us, that is a false hope at best.

Mikki Willis:

Mm-hmm (affirmative).

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

So I'm wondering what's your suspicion is how this leadership is going to emerge and from what places. It could be multiple leaders, it could be communities. I'm really curious as to what your thoughts on that are.

Mikki Willis:

Yeah, it's a super-great question. For me, one of the solutions is, if we emulate our technologies, they say life imitates art and art also imitates life. And if you look at the direction of our technologies, our inventions, our innovations for me, I've learned to look at them as if they're blueprints and we're architects. And we start to develop something. An idea comes through. We start to sketch it and we see it. And it's a blueprint of something that we will be building. And so, if you look at our technology as the blueprint for human evolution, you start to understand, and you can compare it to things like decentralization. So while everything that we've created, all of our technologies are centralized.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Mm-hmm (affirmative).

Mikki Willis:

Which means the servers are in one place. If you want to attack them, you attack them there. And then it goes down everywhere else. Blockchain allows for decentralized technology. So that means there's bits of information spread about all over on servers, all over the world.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

It can be centralized though. Blockchain isn't principally decentralized. It is for certainly Bitcoin, but for – so you can adopt Blockchain in the centralized management. That's what they're doing with central bank [inaudible 01:02:54].

Mikki Willis:

Yes, you can. But the value of it is really the decentralization and that's where we're moving and all the technologies that I'm involved in the different platforms that we're creating right now, I actually said I wouldn't be involved with them unless they were decentralized because otherwise you spend a lot of money and other people's money and you do a lot of work. And then it just takes a company like Google to zap it and take it out of business, like they did to Parler. So I think to emulate where we're heading with technology by looking at the possibility of decentralized leadership is something we really need to look at.

Mikki Willis:

So instead of having the president, top of the pyramid, that runs all of the nation, is it possible that we start looking at the communities we live in, the states that we live in, having their own leadership, agreeing collectively on their own policies, that then it allows for us to see, like right now we're able to look at the model, what states did the best and the worst regarding the lockdown situation.

Mikki Willis:

And we're recognizing now that the ones who were more extreme on the lockdowns they're in worse shape. It didn't improve their health, what it did was crash their economy. Their people are out of work. There's more crime that people who fought for defunding the police crime has spiked 800%. And we can look at these individual territories and learn from them and say, "They did it this way and so you should do it better," learning from that. So it allows us to do that, when everyone's doing the same thing, because we have a globalized regulation and everyone's doing the same thing. We don't have the models and the outliers to look at, to build upon and to do it better. And so, for me, that's one thing but one of the first things that we have to do is, first, come to grips with what's really happening to say the word, communism, to understand that we actually have globalists that are working very hard to create a one-world government.

Mikki Willis:

And I remember back, I have been allergic to conspiracy theories my whole life. I was programmed to just have a knee-jerk reaction. When anyone would talk about the New World Order just years ago, I would just, yeah, I would roll my eyes and step out of the room. And now I realize what that actually means. That's a one-world government. And so, one-world government means now you can – one of the reasons we create wars and we've always created wars. We go in, we villainize their leadership and sometimes it's a lie and we go in and we do a regime change. We blast apart their economy and then we give them aid with the U.S. dollar, and now they're dependent upon the U.S. dollar, now we control that nation. That's the game. And so then when you have a pandemic, now U.S. says, "If you don't play the game, if you don't do what we say we're going to do and follow the World Health Organization," this globalized, whatever you want to call it, "then you're not going to receive the benefits and everything that you are now dependent upon, and your people are going to suffer."

Mikki Willis:

And so that's the way they get everyone to comply. And so we need to identify that, we need to identify the people that are behind this, and we need to, as strong as we get in the streets right now to protest against a wrongful police killing, we need to get into the streets and we need to peacefully use the power of our voice, the power of numbers, to make sure that these people, that they first know we're aware of them and to find a way to get them out of their powers of position. And then we can start talking about new systems. I look at it all the time.

Mikki Willis:

I'm always looking at what would work? What could possibly work? And I was thinking like, "Okay, here in Texas, what would work? Do we need the governor and all of that?" Or what if we created – I like to boil things down to the micro, and I've run companies. So how do we make those work in a new way? Well, if you can take, let's say, for instance, we take 1% of the population of Texas, 1%, and you elect a diverse person of that population. So somebody who understands the elderly, someone who understands engineering, someone who understands infrastructure, someone who understands finances, medicine, all of that. And this 1% of this council is now the – but they're working with the people, hearing the needs of the people.

Mikki Willis:

That's one way to kind of decentralize it, so you're not just dealing with one corruptible governor, one corruptible mayor, or someone. It's not always that they're just corruptible, but sometimes they're just terrorized into complying. So for me, that's what I mean by decentralization. You do put the power in the hands of the people, but not all the people, because quite honestly, we have a lot of issues with democracy. I see the people the way they're behaving out there and I think, "I don't want these people making choices on my life."

Mikki Willis:

And so we have to find some way to create councils the way they do it in indigenous cultures of trusted people who are educated, who, perhaps their job, they get paid and they do nothing else, but – and also they're willing to be under complete – surveillance is a tough word, but to be completely transparent such that we can ensure, to the best of our abilities, that these people aren't doing side deals and becoming corrupt. And so it's almost like they're an anonymous council, like, are we willing to look at new systems like that perhaps in an act of [inaudible 01:08:38] that in the next 10 or 20 years? I think we should at this point, because all the other systems are failing us.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Have you ever heard or read the book "More Equal Animals?"

Mikki Willis:

I have not.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Obviously a derivative work of "Brave New World," or – so it was written by the founder and the creator of a Blockchain crypto asset called EOS, which is not terrific cryptocurrency, but nevertheless, it's a pretty profound idea. The guy's a great thinker, and I would agree. You can get the book for free on his website.

Mikki Willis:

Okay.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

But it essentially provides a strategy, a proposal of how you could actually implement blockchain technology to be truly democratic. And it's a pretty clever actually, and it doesn't allow for any corruption or – and really gives everyone a simple, single reliable vote. I mean, to say that our current voting system is anachronistic is a very serious understatement. I mean, we've got technology that could solve this, it's just a matter of adopting and applying it. So that's something I encourage you to look at, because I do think, maybe it's not that work, but some derivative of it, it could be potentially useful, so...

Mikki Willis:

Thank you. I'll check that out too. I definitely want to-

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah. “More Equal Animals.” Yeah.

Mikki Willis:

Great. In “Plandemic 3,” the third act is going to be all solutions. And so that sounds like a good one to look into.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah. So we're approaching the end, so I'll give you a chance to summarize it, but I am really grateful for your work, your commitment, your sharing, your honest journey. It's a real catalyst for support, creating a documentary with a billion views, I don't know anyone who's done that personally. So that is an amazing testimony that trumps any bestseller in my book. You've changed obviously many hundreds of millions of peoples' views on this and you've been a major catalyst for really helping people wake up and become inspired to take this action is going to be required because we're – to have America preserve the freedom because we're the last stand, we lose it here, the whole world's gone, the whole world.

Mikki Willis:

Mm-hmm (affirmative).

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

That's a big responsibility.

Mikki Willis:

It is. And that's not hyperbole of whatsoever at all. As you said earlier, America is the last stand and we need to fight really hard for it and use our intelligence and turn this ship around.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

All right.

Mikki Willis:

What was the question that you were-

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

The question was, any last point? You'd like to make any summary of the book and definitely would recommend people pick up a copy, and when it's going to be out?

Mikki Willis:

Yeah. Well, there's pre-orders available right now on Amazon, "Plandemic: The Book." And I will say that the short story is I didn't want the book to be written. I had no intention of becoming author but after you become as silenced and banned as I am now, you start seeking any avenue to express your voice. And so when this opportunity came up, my producer said that he would manage it for me and really make sure because he knew I didn't have time to do it myself. And so the publisher I ended up hiring an investigative journalist to be the writer of the book and just do interviews, so I didn't have to write the whole book. And what makes it still powerful for me was we learned about three months into the process that she was not on our side.

Mikki Willis:

And so my producer called me one day and he said, "I have good news and bad news." And I said, "All right." Which he said, "Which one do you want first?" And I said, "Give me the bad." And he said our writer is not on our side. She thinks we're crazy conspiracy theorists. And I said, "See Eric, this is what I was talking about," because I was really reluctant to do the book and I said, "Great, wonderful. What's the good news?" He goes, "Well, the good news is she thought we were crazy, she has now done the research, she just called me and said, her mind is blown because she cannot find anything, any claim that was made that's inaccurate. And she's even going deeper now and she's 100% on our side right now. So she's going to take her name off the book because she's afraid because her whole world is left-leaning journalism. She's afraid that she'll lose her job. She doesn't want her name on the book now because she wants to be totally honest to share it."

Mikki Willis:

So it becomes this really interesting story of this woman who is waking up during the process of co-writing the book. And then I got so excited by that, that I stepped in and said, "I'll co-write it with you and let's go even deeper." And so I'm really grateful for the work that she's done and the outcome of the book and that my producer, Eric pushed me so hard because now it's an incredible testimony to, even a deeper story that we were allowed to tell in a seven-minute movie of "Plandemic," it goes deeper into all of that and all of the agenda. But most importantly, it leaves us very hopeful about what's happening, and points towards some pathways of how we can get out of this mess, and our necessity to take personal responsibility for how we got here. We'd slept through this, the alarms have been going off for decades and we kept hitting snooze and it's time for us to fully wake up and rise up.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yes, indeed. Well, I'm certain that the ghost writer's perception was valid and applaud her for taking her name off the book because I got personal confirmation of that. I'm in the process of put together a book proposal and they said, "Oh, we'll go to some major publishers." He had an agent, submitted, but probably is the best book I've ever authored with respect to its potential impact on human health. And even though I wrote a book on COVID that had a hundred thousand pre-orders, which will probably pale in comparison to yours, but that's a lot, there's not many books that get that many pre-orders. It was wildly successful, in other words. Even with that, every single publisher refused it because of cancel culture.

Mikki Willis:

Yeah, that's right.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

So she was wise to take her name off that book.

Mikki Willis:

Yeah. I tried. I thought, "Well, if you don't give us your name, people might question that, the authenticity of that," and I got on the phone with her and the publishers and I really fought for having her name on it. And they backed her up. They said just what you said. They said, "No, we want her to [crosstalk 01:15:02] and continue working." And now I have to agree that it is probably the best move and-

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

[crosstalk 01:15:09], yeah.

Mikki Willis:

I think that she'll probably, in the next year or two, that she'll be able to come out and reveal herself and say, "I was the one and now it's safe for me to come out." I really hold that vision that that happens.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Yeah. All right. Well, thanks for your work-

Mikki Willis:

Can I say something to you before we go?

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Sure.

Mikki Willis:

I want to say thank you to you because I'm fairly a newbie in this world. I began studying vaccines before the birth of my first child, that was 10 years ago. So I knew about them, but I didn't go really publicly until "Plandemic." And so I'm a newbie in this world. And I came out at a time when the world was already questioning this subject. So even though it was definitely dangerous what I did, there were still a lot more people willing to listen to me. People like yourself who came out long before it was safe, long before anyone was willing to listen to it, long before we had any of the data on the history of the harm that's been done through vaccine trials, you were out there paving the way for people like me. So I just really wanted to take this opportunity to say, thank you for making this possible. I couldn't have done what I did without people like yourself.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

Well, you're welcome. I appreciate you joining the team because we need a village to change this thing.

Mikki Willis:

We do.

Dr. Joseph Mercola:

There's definitely a David versus Goliath approach, and you are playing a very important role. So thanks for what you're doing.

Mikki Willis:

Yeah. Thank you.
